To whom it may concern,

As long as it is not signed into law that I will HAVE to pay Microsoft for buying computer hardware or for signing onto a public network I will find work-arounds, I will abuse rules and break every marketing scheme to be able to use Linux and Mozzarella for my needs, and I will regret this outrageous settlement that was brought upon the U.S. people.

I will not purchase or use Microsoft products unless someone sticks a shotgun into my ribs - which will certainly happen more sooner than later. At the same token, I will never again buy a GM, or buy pizza from the guy on the corner - unless I'll have no other choice.

Taking my business elsewhere used to be my greatest privilege as a consumer in a free marketplace - until Microsoft came along and ensured that I CAN NOT take my business anywhere else!

This settlement will prove it once again that ruthless, unlawful business pays huge, and that the punishment in this country will never match the crime.

One last thing: Microsoft is not an Innovator... *WE ARE* innovators, those who learned and worked to be able to do WITHOUT Microsoft in all these years, and we will keep doing so!

With no particular regards (due to the lousy job you did)
